Subject: Recommendation Letter

I hardly know where to start. Perhaps the beginning would be best; just two+ years ago....

The professional relationship I enjoy with Mr. Jackson began with but a few questions on my part, but within an hour of rhetoric, exploded into a myriad of cooperative ideas, suggestions and potential projects that would benefit all concerned. Mr. Jackson was able to weave his extensive product experience, outsourcing knowledge and logistics with my Sculptural needs. He filled in the blanks of my business ignorance.

As we embarked upon our first project, I realized that his words took on substance: schedules were met, prices remained firm, shipping and arrivals occurred on time, and Mr. Jackson was there on my site as consultant during installations. In my professional 42 years, I have met no more than three men who could match or even approach his personal concern, attitude toward business, honesty, or reliability.

During the sculptural process, I constantly received photos from Jackson's agents at the factories and foundries—through Mr. Jackson—to assure me not only of the status of my product, but to alert me of any potential changes or suggestions as the work proceeded. I also worked directly with Gary on immediate approvals of all phases, in the same manner.

Bonus: As Mr. Jackson is immersed in an ever-growing large-scale Art Field, should an opportunity arise which might benefit a particular artist or customer he has done business with, he is quick to notify that person, to discuss possibilities. In this way, he is an agent within an agent.

It is with no qualms that I recommend Mr. Jackson's services to anyone.

Sincerely,
John David Jagger, M.A.
